REVEALING THE TRUE POWER OF THE D-SERIES SYSTEM

In these harsh economic times, maximising the full potential of your broadcast equipment is critical to survival. Service impact can cost corporations tens of thousands of Euros per minute. At Harris, we believe that knowledge is power — the more you have, the more successful and efficient your business will become.

This is why we have invested time and money to develop exceptional product training programmes, such as our new series of dedicated training courses for Harris® D-Series™ automation — the D-Series Academy.

With a selection of courses and a full certification programme, the D-Series Academy will provide participants with a full understanding of installation, operation and maintenance. Annual online recertification programmes and online material will help course participants keep up-to-date with new tricks, tips and product development, as well as new training programmes that are being developed. Scheduled courses will be offered by our experienced, dedicated training team throughout the year.

D-Series Academy course participants will have access to:

- » Dedicated training equipment that fully emulates a live environment
- » Skilled trainers with decades of broadcast/IT experience
- » Full course notes designed for specific courses
- » Individual workstation and control panels for participants
- » Online training services (to be launched later in 2012)
- » Practical exercises throughout the courses to reinforce learning

D-SERIES ACADEMY OVERVIEW

During the D-Series Academy courses, participants will have access to a dedicated, fully operational D-Series system running the latest hardware and software. The equipment will give attendees the opportunity to learn without the worry of impacting on-air services. Each attendee will have access to his or her own dedicated workstation, with control of real broadcast video equipment. Participant workstations will also have the ability to emulate full system configurations, including the customer's own D-Series configuration.

Practical exercises throughout the courses will help participants leave with the hands-on experience necessary to work on live broadcast platforms. A full certification programme will instill a level of confidence in customers that course participants will know how to get the most out of their D-Series platforms.

D-SERIES ACADEMY COURSE OFFERINGS

D-Series Operations Course

This course will teach participants the operational interfaces for D-Series and arm operators with all the skills necessary to manage and work on D-Series ingest and transmission systems in day-to-day usage scenarios. 3-day course

D-Series Advance Operations Course

Building on the operations course, this course will expose participants to the advance operations features in D-Series, showing how the system can be configured for different workflows and how the interfaces can be tailored for optimal use. 4-day course

D-Series Engineering Course

This course will provide participants with all the tools necessary to support and maintain D-Series systems. Participants will gain hands-on experience of how to troubleshoot problems and implement configuration changes. 5-day course

D-Series Advance Engineering Course

Building on the engineering course, this course will cover how to install D-Series software and hardware, in addition to exploring how to roll out advanced workflows and leverage the maximum benefit from the D-Series system. 5-day course

D-Series Design and Test Course

This course was developed for system integrators, as well as test and project engineers who need to understand how the D-Series system functions. The course will also explore what tests should be performed once configuration changes are made to ensure correct implementation.
